

Preparing for Puberty in Individuals with Developmental Disabilities

This presentation will cover a range of topics related to puberty in individuals with special developmental needs, including:

- Helping children understand and prepare for body changes associated with puberty
- Encouraging good hygiene
- Understanding public/private behaviors
- Handling issues surrounding boundaries and relationships

Presenters

Cora Taylor, PhD

Matthew Kinney, MA, BCBA

When: Friday, March 31, 2017

Registration: 8:30 am | Training: 9:00 am - 12:00 pm

Where: The University of Scranton

Edward R. Leahy Jr. Hall | 2nd Floor Forum | Room 235
237 Jefferson Ave | Scranton, PA 18510

Cost: Free to attend

Register: <https://www.regonline.com/clinic2017>

This free training series is presented by Geisinger's Autism & Developmental Medicine Institute (ADMI) in partnership with the University of Scranton's Panuska College of Professional Studies and Friendship House.

